

FAST: A Military Thriller (The F.A.S.T. Series Book 1)

WARNING: This book is not recommended for people with heart conditions, those taking anti-anxiety medications, or people easily repulsed by ghastly levels of (purely necessary) violence and mayhem. Read at your own risk. The author takes no responsibility for nightmares, mental anxieties or phobias resulting from this book. For everyone else, buckle-up because: THOUSANDS are dying inside. HIDDEN under the burning Arizona desert is the grandest Science-City ever created, and all hell is breaking loose. Using stolen genetic research, terrorists are unleashing a devastating attack on the civilian scientists, on their families, on their children. No one is spared. BARELY one hundred and fifty souls survive the first seven minutes. Injured and wounded, limping or carried, they are frantically battling from minute to minute for their very lives. The odds are stacked against them, but one thing is in their favor. CAPTAIN Alexander Coleman is just minutes away, and hes not coming alone. He commands a full platoon of Special Forces Marines. His estranged wife, Vanessa, and eight year old son, David, might still be alive in the besieged underground complex. The chance they both survived is slim, but thats more than enough. PURE HORROR awaits him, and a frantic race to control the most devastating weapons of mass-destruction ever created: Living weapons. BUT ABOVE ALL, more important than anything else, Captain Alexander Coleman must save his family. Special note: FAST has an active table of contents, is approximately 100,000 words, and displays seamlessly with Kindles and all other eBook reading devices. About the Author: Father of three, SHANE M BROWN was born in 1974 and writes from Brisbane, Australia.
