

Coldiron: The Shanghaiers

The Shanghaiers is set in the wild and brawling days of the gold rush in California. The story brings together for the first time two of the toughest of characters, Luke Coldiron from the Judge and Executioner story and Tom Gallatin from The Highbinders. Luke Coldiron comes down from his ranch in the high Sangre de Cristo Mountains of New Mexico to San Francisco to win a fortune in a game of high stakes poker. Tom Gallatin is deep into a game in which the stakes are even higher. He is the white man who guards Mingren Yangs Chinatown empire, not knowing it is an empire built on slavery of young Chinese girls, opium, and murder. Ging Ti, a lovely Chinese girl, has sold herself in Shanghai for money to help her family buy a fishing boat after loosing theirs to a typhoon. She is shipped across the Pacific for a wealthy Chinaman in San Francisco. Black Drummond is the owner of the wildest and most dangerous saloon in Frisco and the biggest shanghaier on the Barbary Coast. Fallon is the leader of a gang of card cheats who sets out to rob Coldiron of a fortune at cards. Marie, one of the most enticing and beautiful females ever to cut a throat. When Gallatin falls in love with Yangs lovely slave girl, Ging, Yang sends his hatchet men to kill him. Fallon tries to cheat Coldiron of his winnings of a fortune in gold. Drummond shanghai's Coldiron's friend Whittaker onto the Asia Voyager for a long sea voyage to China. Luke and Tom pursue on the Sea Witch and after a sea chase save Whitaker. Upon returning to San Francisco, a battle against the thieves, murderers and shanghaiers must be fought. Gallatin and Coldiron and Ging join forces to kill to survive. From Coldiron The Shanghaiers Gallatin jumped to the entrance of the apartment. The lock had been broken. He flung the door open. In one long stride he was inside and charging at Gings captor. He had to reach the man before he could draw a weapon. The Chinaman flung the girl aside and charged strongly forward to meet Gallatin. They crashed together. Gallatin smashed the man savagely in the face with his fists. The shorter man rolled with the blows and grabbed Tom by the coat front. He hurled himself backward, pulling Tom to the floor with him. As he thudded down, he kicked Tom viciously in the stomach. Tom lost his wind with a swish. He hit the man and broke free. He surged to his feet. The man was equally quick, vaulting erect. His hand dove inside his blouse and came out with a two-edged dagger. He jumped toward Tom. Tom yanked his six-gun. He did not want to shoot the man here and make a noise. He hurled himself from in front of him. As he faded to the side, he extended his arm full length and swung the pistol mightily against the man's head. The vibration of the iron weapon shattering skull bone, ran up Tom's arm.
