

Full Metal Human: The First Robot with Human Mind: Technocracy Science Fiction: The Soldier Turned into The First Full Cyborg

Adam was just a human, till today. He used to take care of his taxes, his bills, his contribution, and go to work. His car was self-driven, and his mobile phone used to tell him everything; when he should give a buzz to an old friend and how should be dressed to the next appointment. He didnt used to age anymore, as humans took ride of that one and many often diseases. However, he was still purely human. No prothesis, no implants, no mutations. No artificial evolution, apart of the lack of aging. And because of that, his world felt apart. His car crashed one day going into work a military base in Colorado, where he used to be a head in strategic operations. No science could save his body now. And then, he woke up. With no legs, no arms, no heart and no brain. He was just a cyborg, a modern robot capable to crush an iron bar with his bare robotic hands. The army put the information from his old brain into that machine. So, what was he now? Wasnt human, but felt like one. A clone? A copy? He didnt found difference, apart of the recipient. The first Full Metal Human, TV said. And he has to face trial to see if can be accepted properly as a human being or not.
