See inside for a free gift offer! By day, its a city filled with the living and the dead go into hiding. But at night, the ruthless dead threaten the safety of the streets. When his family is brutally murdered by Red Eye, the deadliest of vampires, sixteen-year-old Ricket Welsh finds himself alone and thrown into an orphanage to mourn the loss of the life and family he once knew. Learning the truth behind the vicious and unforgiving vampire who killed his parents, Ricket vows that when he gets older hell avenge his parents death--even if the co-called hunters are just a myth. But a strange connection with Red Eye has Ricket questioning his fate as he feels the pull the vampire has on him. After a nearly-fatal run-in with the vile creature, Ricket awakens to the news that hes been adopted by the Vantasy! family. Finally, Ricket's luck is on the upswing... But there might be more to the Vantasy! family than Ricket ever realized as he embarks upon a world of danger and vengeance, life and death, and the hazy shades of gray between good and evil. Will Ricket be able to find a sense of family when danger threatens his very existence???? How did you get into stories like this? I didnt always love reading demon hunter books. My favorite book growing up (and to this day) is A Wrinkle in Time, but I didnt have a love for reading at all. When I reached the seventh grade we had to read books. My teacher didnt care what books we read, they could be vampire legends, they could be horror, they could even vampire horror novels. She didnt care. The teacher had a lot of young adult bestsellers in her classroom library, and once I found those, I had found my vampire obsession. ??? Who should read this book? I know a lot of adults read young adult best sellers, and thats awesome. I never pictured my demons hunter books for teens, but it works out just as well. Theres nothing too graphic in my book, and while theres a tiny bit of swearing, Ive read much worse. The real audience I was going for are those women out there who love vampire horror novels and those looking for awesome, vampire legends woven into their stories. I find I have a lot in common with women my age, and my characters are typically of the female variety and just starting out in life, so that works. Honestly, these books could work for anyone with a vampire obsession.??? Are there any authors who've shaped your writing? I've read a few young adult best sellers but for the most part these demon hunter books weren't inspired by Buffy the Vampire Slayer. Another author who really sparked my interest in vampires was Jeanne Kalogridis. She has this series Diaries of the Family Dracul that sparked a vampire obsession in me. She wove together history and dark fantasy so artfully that she often made me late for work! I strove to stick close to vampire legends like her when writing them. That's when the idea of vampire horror novels came to me.???
