--> please refer to the item condition on the offer page for details of condition. This section is disabled because you're listing against an existing ASIN. -> this is what I was told when I posted this, selling an item that is already on Amazon. Numerous sellers have already had this item posted and this feature was disabled due to that fact. Only after I posted it is this site asking me to describe a already described item...? This is confusing because now I have to go back and edit every single ad I wasn't able to describe in the first place... why have I sell similar and have disabled functions only to make me do it later...
