He could hear his own breath rapid and shallow. The killers was deep and measured. From his crouched position Stich could see him moving slowly, picking his way. He pulled himself deeper into the corner, willing the killer to leave, to give up the chase and go back to the house. But he didnt. He kept on coming... David Stichell, a London chiropractor, is an ordinary man plucked from the normality of his existence and thrown into hell. As a helpless witness to the brutal shooting of his fiancee he escapes her psychotic killer and alerts the police. They arrive expecting a murder scene but the place is clean and his fiancees body has vanished. Working late one night a lab technician notices something unusual in a routine lab procedure, the results had always been consistent, until now. Then it hit him, someone meant for him to get this new result. Hours later hes dead, with a syringe full of acid sticking out of his arm. As murder victims pile up, Stichell finds himself running from the police and his fiancees killer. Then when he can run no more it becomes clear that some very particular powers want him dead. With deception at every turn, Stich can trust no-one. As his body deteriorates he must get ready for the fight of his life.
