

Narratives (Armenian Edition)

Stepan Yeghiayi Zoryan (Arakelyan), (September 15, 1889, Karakilisa - October 14, 1967, Yerevan) was a prominent Armenian writer. His works are dedicated to the life of Armenian village, its social problems and sovietisation. After the October Revolution he published a number of novel collections (War, 1925; Tsovan, 1925; The library girl, 1926; Fire, 1927, etc.). St. Zoryans pen was fertile, he wrote stories, novels, litro-scientifical articles and memoirs. His compositions were translated into 22 different languages. One of his most notable works is King Pap (Pap tagavor) historical novel, published many times and entered to the Armenian schools teaching program. The Stepan Zoryan state museum was opened in 1972, in Kirovakan, (current Vanadzor), at the writers own house, called by the local inhabitants an Armenian fortress. It was partially destroyed during the 1988 Spitak earthquake and reopened in 1990.
