

HADES: Forty-Ninth in a Series of Jess Williams Westerns (A Jess Williams Western Book 49)

Jess finds himself in the town of Appleton, Texas, where he finds Lance Lucky Leyden. Finding no law in town, he hauls the body to the town of Avery to make a claim for the bounty on Leydens head. While there, he discovers that the next man hes hunting, Lowe Rogan, is hanging around a town everyone calls Hades. They claim that the town rose up from the depths of hell and is rife with demons and witches. Jess doesnt believe any of it. He finds the town and discovers that it has been taken over by the Roper brothers and their gang of cold-blooded killers, including Low Rogan. Jess tracks Rogan from Hades to the town of Chilton, where he ends up killing him and another man by the name of Arron Carmichael. The law in Chilton, along with all the townsfolk, are terrified of the Roper brothers and their men. They believe that the town of Hades is cursed. Jess demands that the town marshal pay him his bounty on Rogan and he does so reluctantly. Ropers men take revenge on the town of Chilton by hanging the town marshal, leaving Jess feeling responsible for it. He vows to remove every cold-blooded killer from Hades and save the town, but hes up against some of the worst killers in the west. Then, the brother of Arron Carmichael, Jason, shows up in Chilton to kill Jess as a revenge killing. But surprisingly, Jason teams up with Jess to rid Hades of the Roper brothers and their ruthless gang of killers. Jess quickly finds out that Carmichael is suffering from bad memories of the Civil War and worries that Carmichael might just get him killed. The battle begins, lead starts flying and men start dying. Jess hopes that hes still standing when its over, but he finds the job of saving whats left of Hades a much more difficult task. At the same time, he wonders if Carmichael is helping only to find the perfect time to kill him for killing his brother Arron.
